Facebook let you now easily link to their site and feedback to their users if you like your website. Lots of "like" recommendations will be a bonus for your site, we suspect. Plus you can even list recommendations about your site. Ok so the example below illustrates this nicely. Take a look, the facebook button appears as in the image below, stating "Like" with a thumbs up. This button if clicked will act as a bonus for you in 2 ways: firstly users can see if people in the "real world" have given you a thumbs up, second you may then appear in a list of appealing sites that friends or friends etc can browse and stumble across at their leisure.

Not sure what's so great about this? Take a look at the recommendations tab on the right of the Free Press Releases homepage. It allows a way for users of Facebook (who permit plug in use) to come across your site. (Visit www.red-flag.co.uk and contact them if you want help with webdesign to enable this).

The image shows a screenshot of the TopClock website. At the top, the logo "TopClock" is displayed in large, colorful letters (orange, red, blue, green), with "SINCE 2007" and a telephone icon followed by "24 hour" and the phone number "0845 3733517". Below the logo is a navigation bar with buttons for "Clocks home", "Search", "FAQ", "Articles", "Links", and "Help". A breadcrumb trail below the navigation bar reads "You're here : Clocks". On the left side, there is a "LOGIN" section with a "Username" field, a password field with masked characters, a "Remember Me" checkbox, and a "Login" button. To the right of the login section, there is a Facebook "Like" button with the text "Be the first of your friends to like this." Below this, a news article snippet is visible with the title "How the world sets its clocks to Greenwich Mean Time" and the author "Dor". The article text includes "Sunday, 15 August 2010 | Administrator" and "Greenwich Mean Time (GMT) is a global reference point for".
